HOW RECIPROCITY WORKS.

GRATIFYING RESULTS ALREADY SEEN.

CTING SECRETARY WHARTON'S REPLY TO

SPYATE RESOLUTION. Washington, June 20.—The Acting Secretary of a resolution passed some weeks ago inquiring as to the "practical effect" of the reciprocity negotiations. It was accompanied by statistical tables, showing the population and commerce of the countries and colonies with which reciprocity arrangements have been concluded, and the growth of trade between them and the United States since what is known as the Pan-American movement began in 1834. Copies of all the agreements are also submitted. The communica-

the agreements are also submitted. The communication says:

It is proper to suggest that "the practical effect" of these arrangements cannot be measured by the commerce of a month or a year, for the result must depend, not alone upon the character of the concessions secured by diplomatic negotiations, but by the degree to which they are utilized by private commercial encountry must seek and cultivate the markets of foreign lands with the same intelligence and energy that have developed and extended our internal commerce. Before the full result of the reciprocity arrangements can be realized we must provide the means of transacting our own business, independent of the ships and banks and capital of our commercial rivals. All this requires time and patience, which legislation on the part of Congress, and correctle and systematic effort among those for whose benefit the concessions secured have been intended. If that the advantages are recognized and appreciated is already apparent by the interest that has been awakened among the industrial and commercial communities of this country. Although it is scarcely just to measure, as it is neeless to conjecture, the results that have or may come from the advantages afrarded by the reciprocity negotiations, it is gratifying to note that it will continue and be permanent. It is equally noticeable, too, that the expense from Great Eritain to the Latin-American countries are failing off with even greater rapidity; so much so as to excite the apprehension of her commercial organizations and fifther the ecel procity and the reciprocity and the reciprocity is above; the successful operation of the reciprocity and the reciprocity and the reciprocity is and the successful operation of the reciprocity and the reciprocity is above.

Acting Secretary gives in detail facts and figure showing the successful operation of the reciprocity prangements with Brazil, Cuba, Porto Rico, San and the British West Indian colonies, and as follows:

concludes as follows:

The enactment of the reciprocity section of the Tariff act of 1890, in connection with the Meat Insection act, conferred upon the Executive the power through negotiation to very promptly secure the repeal of the prohibition upon American pork, which for ten years had practically excluded that important product from most of the continental countries of Europe. But it not only brought about this result, it likewise enabled the Executive to regotiate a reciprocity arrangement, first with Germany and afterward with Austria, by which, in return for the admission into those countries, at reduced duties, of a large list of American agricultural and other products. Negotiations upon the lines of Section 3 of the Tariff set have been in progress in the City of Mexico between the United States Minister and a special commissioner of the Mexican Government, but so far no authority result has been obtained.

Before the drill was finished the sun came out hot and gave promise of what was to come later. A stiff breeze, which streed up white caps on the river, came directly from the south, so no one was uncomfortable before breakfast. The different companies in the 60th occupied parts of both parade grounds, so the troopers did not have an opportunity of doing any brillian work. Those who were watching the drill, however, were little short of being astonished at the admirable way in which the men handled the green horses ain Roe's well-directed efforts and the enthusiastic and intelligent work of the men themselves are plainly seen in the results accomplished by this body of

The early drill took out the "kinks" in the limbs of the troopers, but those first few moments in the saddle seemed like hours, so acute was the pain. Breakfast time came and the men were ready for it. At 9:30 they were called out again and kept in the broiling sun for two hours. Those were the most trying two hours which the troopers have experienced trying two hours which the troopers have experienced thus far on this tour of duty. No complicated manocuvres were attempted, Captain Roe conficienting atmself by allowing the men to become thoroughly acquainted with the animals which they rode. From the celerity with which man and beast came to understand each other great things may be expected before the troop starts for home on Saturday.

EXPOSED MANY PERSONS TO CONTAGION

A BOCTOR DID NOT RECOGNIZE SMALLPOX IN THIS RUSSIAN IMMIGRANT.

To judge by a case reported to the Health Department vesterday, there may be another epidemic of smallpox. Among the passengers who arrived in this country on the North German Lloyd steamer Saale a few days ago was Christine Olga, a Russian girl. The saale had several cases of smallpox among her steerage passengers and it was therefore decided to detain at Quarantine all those persons who had been brought into contact with the patients. Christine Olga was one of those who was held, until the authorities, under the impression that all danger of infection had passed, released her.

She went to the home of her brother-in-law, a mar named Sava, who keeps an intelligence and employment office at No. 408 Third ave. While there Christine came in contact with a large number of girls who visited the office in search of work. She went into the domestic service of Mrs. C. Paret, of No. 45 East One-hundred-and-lifth st. Last Friday she became ill. Smallpox was suspected and Christine was taken to the office of Dr. Collins, No. 153 Lexington-ave He falled to detect any symptoms of the disease and the woman was taken back to Mrs. Paret's home, where she remained while the characteristic eruption ap peared. Yesterday she was again taken to Dr. Collins office, which was filled with patients awaiting treatment. A glance at the woman, whose neck and face ment. A glance at the woman, whose neck and face were covered with a rosh, sufficed this time to tell Dr. Collins that he had a well-developed case of smallpox before him. With all possible haste he sent Miss Olga to Bellevne Hospital and reported the case to the Health Department. Late in the afternoon the woman was removed to North Frother Island.

Two hispectors from the Bureau of contactous Diseases went to Sava's home last night, and having vaccinated everybody known to have come in contact with Miss Olga, thoroughly fumigated the Mouse. Mrs. Paret has been warned to have her family exactinated and to use all possible means to prevent Se spread of the disease.

CREDITORS TO GET ANOTHER DIVIDEND.

J. Edward Simmons, president of the Fourth National Bank and receiver of the Afferican Loan and Trust Hank and receiver of the Afferican Loan and Trust Company, announced yesterday that he has enough money on hand again to pay another dividend on preferred stock. This time Mr. Simmons says he can pay 30 per cent, which will bring the amount up to 70 per cent. Sutas have been begun against the forty directors of the fost-pany, and in this way the receiver hopes to get enough money to pay the preferred stockholders dollar for dollar. The common stockholders and unsecured depositors, however, it is understood, will not get anything. This means a total loss of $1,000,000, and of this loss $311,000 came out of a logue on the capital stock of a sulfrand came out of a loan on the capital stock of a saliroad, which stock to-day is worthless. Mr. Simmons has obtained an order from the court for the appointment of a referee to investigate the receiver's statements. As soon as the investigation is completed the dividend will be

TO SWEEP THE COUNTRY.

REPUBLICAN PROSPECTS.

HARRISON'S RENOMINATION CONTINUES TO

BE APPLAUDED. TICKET AND PLATFORM WELL MATCHED.

From The Toledo Blade.

It need not be surprising if Harrison and Reld carry every Northern State in November. Protection and Reciprocity will be a swift team of roadsters.

BELIEVER IN A FREE BALLOT. From The Boston Republican (colored men's organ).

To give Mr. Harrison the full measure of justice to which he is entitled, we should say that he is the only Republican President since Grant who has stood up squarely in his shoes for a free ballot and a fair count in the South. He has made better appointments among the colored men of that section than any of his predecessors.

GERMANS EXTOL THE TICKET. From The Calcago Freie Presse, June 11.

From The Calcago Freie Presse, June 11.

All's well that ends well! In the nomination of Harrison and Reid, the Republican National Convention placed a ticket in the field which every Republican, every believer in Republican principles, can support with a good conscience and a happy heart. Every Republican and every believer in Republican principles will support it. It is, moreover, a ticket which commands the respect of every American citizen to whatever party he may belong, a ticket that represents the best interests of the country, the sound, conservative sense of the people. The election of the ticket will be a guarantee of the continuation of a genuine, patriotic, clever, statesmanlike, honorable and conscientious direction of the Federal Government.

All signs show that Harrison is now even a stronger candidate than he was four years ago, He is held to-day in still higher regard than four years ago, when he was not so well known. Even his Democrat opponents must admit that he has shown greater talents, greater gifts and greater statesmanship than they expected. It can be truly said that he has proved himself equal to the high demands made upon him. He has—and that is the principal thing—made himself worthy and deserving of re-election. His Administration has been not only satisfactory in the highest sense, capable, honorable and free from scandals, but it has had brilliant successes and great victories, such as few can boast.

Harrison has now the confidence of the people, and this confidence is now a shield which will ward off all attacks. Harrison needs to make no defence, no excuses. He represents truly the ideas and principles, the great objects of the great National Republican party.

HARRISON LOGICALLY A NECESSITY.

HARRISON LOGICALLY A NECESSITY.

HARRISON LOGICALLY A NECESSITY.

From The New-York Independent.

The logical successor of President Harrison was himself. The choice of any other person, however able, amiable and acceptable, would have put the party in an awkward position for the coming campaign. The questions to be contested are not those of eight years, or even four years ago; but those which have arisen under this Administration. We could not ask a vote of confidence on Arthur's record, excellent though it was; we must claim it on the achievements of President Harrison. If he had been set aside we could not have held up his record as a pledge of the future without stuttineation. To him belongs the credit not only of a clean and respectable Administration, but of a series of brilliant successes in diplomatic and financial lines. We need only mention the Pan-American Congress, Samoa, Behring Sea, reciprocity treaties, the removal of the European embargo on American pork, and the refunding scheme of the Treasury Department. The efficiency of every Department has been greatly increased, his judicial appointments have been eminently strong, and the Government has been most admirably administered. This cannot be denied, and it makes altogether a magnificent record on Tach to appeal to the country for an extension of the lease of power.

MR. CLARKSON FOR HARMONY.

MR. CLARKSON FOR HARMONY.

From The Chicago Tribune's Des Moines dispatch.

We expect every Republican vote for Harrison (said Mr. Clarkson at a mass-meeting here trentgith, as good a Republican, and as sinfere, and honest, and fearless a man as ever lived. Anything else would be alike unfaithful to personal honor and party duty.

In General Harrison, who by the greatness of things accomplished has lifted up in America a new name for the admiration of the world, every Republican in the land may find a candidate worthy of his unquestioning allegiance and hearty support. He has not only filled the office of President with sufficient ability and greatness, he has added a new title of honor to the place itself, and whatever weaknesses he may have shown in the office or may have to meet in the campaigh, they are the weaknesses of our party and public systems, and not personally his own. He represents noishfully every principle of our party. He represents in the first of the place is a first of the American people, and he and Mr. Reid form a ticket worthy to inve the cordial and fighting support of the 7,000,000 Republican voters in the Republican party. TURNING DEFEAT INTO VICTORY.

From The Steuben (N. Y.) Courier.

The political reverses of 1860 were looked upon by many as a condemnation of the protective and reciprocity policies of the Administration, but Mr. Harrison resolutely upheid them till their legitimate fruits had time to ripen. RE-ELECTION REYOND A DOUBT. From The Southbridge (Mass.) Journal.

President Harrison has not only been renominated, but he will be re-elected. This is a Republican year. A HIGHLY SUGGESTIVE FACT.

From The Plattsburg Sentinel.

The fact that there was no avowed candidate in the field against Harrison, although up for a second term, shows the unbounded confidence which the people of the United States have in the man who now occupies the Presidential chair. THE HAT A STUPID JOKE. From The Peckskill Messenger.

But Benjamin Harrison owes to day little or nothing of his world wide prominence and distinction to his renowned ancestry. NOT AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY.

From The Salem (Mass.) Observer.

President Harrison is not an "unknown quantity," politically speaking, nor an unknown quality. His works praise him.

A CANDIDATE WITH STRONG POINTS. From The New-York Independent,

From The New-York Independent,
Mr. Reld has strong points as a candidate. He is not allied with any faction or section of the party and has no active political enemies who would desert the ticket because of his association with it. Personally, he is known as an afinite, courteous, dignified gentiaman, making friends without effort, and very popular in society. As a journalist he has made The Tribune in this country for sixty years, and the thousands of unimpeachable testimonials from those who have used them, and their constantly increasing sale, is positive evidence that they perform all that is claimed for them.

A LADY ADVISES LADIES.

I know a charming lady who knows more beautiful I know a charming lady who knows more beautiful and attractive women than any other lady in this city. In conversation recently, she raid: "I often feel very sorry when I see so many beautiful women so deneate sad suffering so much, and I have often asked myself what the reason is? I think ladies do not exercise the proporcare. They do not eat nourishing food, they are careless of their feet, their necks, their chests. In this way they open the door for diseases, and those thousands of troubles which so often afflict womankind, but worse than all they allow their life and strength to run down to a low ebb. How many women are constantly seen in this condition. They need help, they need something to depend upon, something that will assist them, some friend in need. I know this, lafgely, from my own experience, for I was once in the same condition myself, I thought the matter over carefully, and decided what I would do. I knew I needed a gentle, constant stimulant, something that would assist my vital forces, keep my blood throbbing and act as a tonic. I decided to try Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey, and its effect has been simply wonderful. I do not know what pains, sickness or weakness are, and I am satisfied ladies generally could be in the same happy condition by a proper use of the same means."

the greatest political power in the country. When he succeeded to its control at the end of the disastrous candidacy of Horace Greeley, it had neither prosperity nor the promise of prosperity. For awhile its fate hung in the balance, as it seemed, but, triumphing over formidable obstacles, his wise control has brought it through all its financial difficulties and raised it to the highest piane of success.

THE TRAINING OF JOURNALISM.

THE TRAINING OF JOURNALISM.

From The New-York Evangelist.

The nomination of Whitelaw Reid for the Vice-Presidency is a distinct tribute to the power of the press—a power which has been growing so rapidly in our day as to demand recognition. From the very founding of the Government it has been in the hands chiefly of two classes—soldiers and lawyers; the reason for which it is easy to see.

The vocation of an Editor is not a special preparation for the duties of a political position, and yet it is one that requires ability of a high order and of a peculiar kind. To be the conductor of a daily journal of large circulation and wide influence, requires a man to take large views of things; his eyes must range over a wide horizon. At the same time he has to bestow close attention on an infinite variety of details. These two things combined make what may be called the power of perspective, of seeing at once the large and the small, which is the secret of successful administration. With no wish to exaggerate the ability required in a profession to which we belong, it is our candid opinion that it requires a higher order of ability to edit a metropolitan journal than to fill an office in the Cabinet. Nobody, not even a soldier in the lield, needs to have his wits about him more than an Editor. He has to act prompely, sometimes can a remarkable degree. With his natural quickness of mith he has been trained by long practice, first as a reported in the army during the war, and since by a quarter of a century of journalism. He is a man of the best character, the son of an old Covenanter, and himself a member of the Presbyterian Church. For that and other remons his advent to the second place in the Government, while it would gratify a feeling of personal friendship, will be an honor not only to himself but to the profession to which he belongs, as well as a benefit to his country.

THE TYPICAL AMERICAN.

From The Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Mr. Reid has not only been thoroughly American himself, but he has spread American ideas in his letters from the buttlefield, in his editorial utterances in a great newspaper, and as a United States Minister. No man better deserves the name typical American than the Republican candidate for Vice-President. HIS CAREER BRILLIANT AND REMARKABLE

From The San Francisco Bulletin.

Mr. Reid is a man of great ability and appears to have been the unanimous choice of the convention. In intellectual power and capacity he may be said to be the equal of any man who has ever filled that really high post. Everybody is familiar with his remarkable and brilliant career. A FAITHFUL WORKER IN THE REPUBLICAN VINE

From The Duluth Tribune.

It is eminently fitting that this able Editor and politician should be accorded second place on the ticket (of the party) he has so nobly worked for.

From The Oneonta Spy.

Mr. Reid will strengthen the Republican ticket.
For many years the Editor of The Tribune, and during the last three years our representative in France, he has ever proved himself worthy of the confidence now reposed in him by the Republican party.

HIS HONORS FAIRLY WON.

MOST ADMIRED WHERE BEST KNOWN. From The Toledo Blade.

Mr. Reid combibes many elements of strength. In New-York, where he is best known he is particularly popular, and his candilacy will grow in favor the better he is known.

EDUCATED IN THE BEST SCHOOL From The Hartford Journal.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid, of The New-York Tribune, who has been nominated for Vice-President, is a man of large experience in public affairs. He has made a thoroughly successful representative of the United States in the Franch capital, and is connected socially with the most respectable families in the country. Mr. Reid is a trained journalist, winning his spurs as a warr correspondent. He has for years been a strong friend and supporter of Mr. Bhilme.

Mr. Reid's selection would have been a good one, no matter what State he might have happened to hall from. He is a man of eminent abilities. He is not a politician, but he is a statesman. In his profession he occupies the highest rank.

The services which he rendered his country during his stay at Parls are of the highest merit. It is almost exclusively due to his personal efforts that American mears have found entrance into France once more. He has also successfully negotiated a commercial treaty with the French Republic that will be of great benefit to American trade.

WHAT HE HAS DONE FOR AMERICAN CULTURE

WHAT HE HAS DONE FOR AMERICAN COLLURGE.

From The Iowa Capital.

Mr. Refit has been the Editor of The New-York Tribune for more than twenty years. He it was, after the death of Horace Greeley, who brought the paper back into the Republican party. The Tribune has been made a great paper by Whitelaw Reid. It is great now in the field it is intended to occupy, that field being the making of a newspaper for educated people.

HIS SCOTCH ANCESTRY WINS FRIENDS. From The St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Republican.

Calestonia County takes a special interest in Mr. Reid, for he is a Caledonian by descent, being a grand-son of General Whitelaw, of Ryegate, one of the early settlers of this county and a leading man in his day. STRENGTHENING THE TICKET. From The Kennebec (Augusta, Me.) Journal. His penination was a wise move and will contribute materially to Republican success at the polls next November.
